LUBERT-ADLER, CANDLEBROOK ACQUIRE FIVE STUDENT HOUSING PROPERTIES FOR $230 MILLION

Philadelphia, PA, November 4, 2014 – Philadelphia-based Lubert-Adler Partners has partnered with New York-based Candlebrook in the $230 million acquisition of five student housing properties in the Midwest and Southeast. The seller was Trinitas of Lafayette, Indiana.

Candlebrook is launching a new subsidiary, Letter 9, to manage its student housing platform, beginning with the five newly acquired properties comprising over 3,400 beds. Each property offers students a wide range of amenities including clubhouses, pools, hot tubs, basketball and volleyball courts, game rooms, and state-of-the-art fitness facilities. The five properties are:

- The Dillon (formerly The Collegiate on Paterson), with 635 beds, located in Bloomington, Indiana and serving the University of Indiana;
- The Tyler, with 675 beds, located in Indianapolis, Indiana and serving Indiana University-Purdue University Indiana (IUPUI);
- The Blake, (formerly The Collegiate on Busbee), with 736 beds, located in Kennesaw, Georgia and serving Kennesaw State University;
- The Wyatt (formerly The Collegiate on Angliana), with 699 beds, located in Lexington, Kentucky and serving the University of Kentucky;
- The James (formerly The Collegiate at VCU), with 690 beds, located in Richmond, Virginia and serving Virginia Commonwealth University.

Lubert-Adler was co-founded in 1997 by Ira Lubert and Dean Adler, who collectively have over 50 years of experience in underwriting, acquiring, repositioning, refinancing, and disposing real estate assets. Today, the Philadelphia-based firm has grown to include more than 20 investment professionals and has invested $6.5 billion of equity into assets valued at over $16 billion.
